The Survey of Student Resources and Assets

Measures the Five Promises in Your Community

The more support young people get from their community, the more likely they are to be successful. What's more, the best community support comes from knowledge and understanding of its youth.

The Tool to Help You Understand Your Community's Young People

From a commission by America's Promise—The Alliance for Youth, Search InstituteSM has developed a survey that helps communities understand their young people by providing a snapshot of the presence, or absence, of The Five Promises in those young people. The Survey of Student Resources and Assets provides valuable information to help a community assess the needs of their youth and develop strategies to meet those needs.

Developed in 1998, The Survey of Student Resources and Assets allows individual communities to gather data on the extent to which their 6th through 12th grade youth are experiencing The Five Promises established by America's Promise and Search Institute's 40 Developmental AssetsTM.

The Survey of Student Resources and Assets

Focusing on students in grades 6 through 12, the 143-item survey is unique because it:

- Measures The Five Promises defined by America's Promise;
- Measures 5 risk-taking behaviors, 2 thriving indicators, and Search Institute's 40 Developmental Assets,
- Reports results by total sample, gender, and grade; and
- Can mobilize your community around The Five Promises and the 40 Developmental Assets.

In addition to its serving as a community mobilization tool, the survey can also assist state and local educators in monitoring indicators related to student well-being, set priorities and strategies for programs and services, provide a common framework for cross-sector collaboration, provide data for grant writing or reports to funding agencies, and provide a "youth voice" in organizational and community planning.
