Improving Individual Student Outcomes

1. Assessment

The Developmental Assets Profile, for ages 11–18, provides a quick, valid, and reliable 360° look at a young person's view of his or her internal and external assets. It yields quantitative scores on the eight asset categories, as well as how youth are faring personally, socially, and within the family, school, and community contexts.

2. Interactive Tools

Use cards, booklets, and activities to work with students and guide them in discovering their strengths.

I Noticed! Notes

Show kids you're paying attention to their good behavior with these colorful, tear-off rewards—perfect for classrooms and out-of-school programs. Inspired by the “positive ticket” approach used by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, these messages are a fun and affordable way to “catch” kids when they're doing something right.

2009, 4¼" x 2¾", set of four padded tablets, 50 notes each
Item code: 406

Positive Values Cards

Teachers, counselors, and youth workers love to give their students these sturdy, credit-card-size reminders of the positive values that should guide kids in life. One side lists the six assets dealing with positive values, and the other side gives questions to help young people make reasonable choices. Positive Values Cards also include a signature bar so that students can sign their commitment to these values.

2005, 2¼" x 3½", plastic card, pack of 20 | Item code: 372

Personal Commitment Cards

Empower youth to build assets for themselves and their peers! Personal Commitment Cards are perfect handouts for students, children, or any young person in your life as reminders that they play an important role in the quality of their own lives.

2002, 2¼" x 3½", plastic card | Item code: 906

Hidden Treasure of Assets™ (game)

The Hidden Treasure of Assets is a game that teaches the 40 Developmental Assets and the consequences of risky behaviors in a fun, easy-to-use, board game format. The interactive format makes this a game students will ask to play again and again, while the strong research base provides the criteria needed to use Safe and Drug Free Schools dollars.
