

The importance of relationships in the social and emotional learning of youth is well documented by extensive research. Yet many professionals who work directly with youth, especially those from marginalized communities, do not have the skills to build developmental relationships. This workshop is for organizational leaders and trainers who want to prepare their direct service staff and teachers to create intentional and inclusive relationships that are life changing.

What You Will Learn

Participants will be guided through the use of the training tools and resources of Search Institute's Developmental Relationships Framework. They will learn to train direct service staff on the following content:

- The connections between relationships and youth outcomes
- The relationship gap between different types of youth
- The five elements of Search Institute's Developmental Relationships Framework: Express Care, Share Power, Provide Support, Expand Possibilities and Challenge Growth
- How to assess current relational skills
- Relationship building activities with groups and individual youth
- Ways to integrate relationship building practices into normal routines with youth
- Creating a personal improvement plan for building relationships

What You Will Get

- PowerPoint Presentations with speaker's notes
- Leader's Guide including comprehensive instructions
- Activity Book with thirty structured activities
- Training Handouts

Digital copies included*

Workshop Format

- 2 Full Days

Who Should Attend?

This workshop is designed for teams of two or more people from:

- Secondary Schools
- Youth Programs (Out-of-School)
- Mentoring Organizations
- Juvenile Justice Programs

"I am so appreciative that this training focused on organizational implementation. It's hard to find something valuable that targets program and system development! Fabulous resources provided!"

- 2019 Getting Relationships Right workshop attendee

Learn More

Email

marys@search-institute.org

Call

612-692-5526

Visit

searchinstitute.org/gettingrelationshipsright

We can also bring this training to you.

Contact us to find out how!